

Rethinking Linkage to and Retention in HIV Care in Indiana Study

The Indiana University School of Public Health-Bloomington along with the Indiana Minority Health Coalition is exploring patient and provider experiences of linkage to and retention in HIV care in Indiana. We are trying to gather the insights of those with relevant experience working in the area of HIV care and services.

We hope to develop a set of strong recommendations that will contribute to improving linkage to and retention of patients in care. Because of your experience working with these patients and their families, we value your input and ask if you take our survey by following the link below.

<http://bit.do/Provider-Professional>

If you have any questions about this study please contact Dr. Carrie Lawrence at indianacarestudy@gmail.com or 812-325-2026.

QR CODE to Survey

This project is funded through Indiana University School of Public Health and intends to engage and collaborate with individuals living with HIV and/or friends and family members to listen, learn, and empower individuals to inform and improve HIV care.